Marrying a Butterfly

Ralph Is Blindly Infatuated With His Bride-to-Be—Few Fashion Briefs—Hints for the Busy Home Woman—Recipes for Delicious Dishes—Rhubarb Puffs and Fritters.

"Dearest Ethel: I have the best of news for you. I have found a house that is modern in every particular, and it is for sale. It was built by a widower for his second wife. The man died before they had been married a year, and the wife went elsewhere to live. It is easily the nicest house in town, excepting perhaps the villa built by the millionaire Jaynes who runs the beet factory here."

"I want to see the house yesterday. The neighborhood is fine. It is next door to the junior partner of the firm, and there is a group of houses in that locality that are all good, and more important, they are occupied by a lot of friendly people who are real neighbors. They have a little club that includes all that congenial group, and you will find that you will not be out of the world or without society, as you have feared."

"I like the work and they like me, for they told me so. So it is a go, little girl. Get your showery started, and your duds ready, for I shall come back for you in three months. Come back for my little bride, and there will be a new hanging of the crane. I forgot to say that there is an open fireplace in this house. You know you said you would have to have a fireplace, so this will fill the bill. I am inclosing a kodak picture of the house. By the time I get your reply I shall have heard from the owner of the place, who, I understand, is anxious to sell. Hurrah, Ethel! Give three cheers for Fairport. Your own impatient RALPH."

Ethel sat looking at the picture of the house with a satisfied smile on her face when her mother came into the room.

"Why, that is a very handsome house. I did not think Ralph could afford to buy anything like that," remarked Mrs. Mertage in surprise.

"Well, he knows that I will not go unsatisfied. I do not propose to live in the backwoods without the luxuries I am used to. He must keep me in style. He has simply got to do it, and so I have told him. That is why he wanted to go to this out-of-the-way place. He could not make as much money anywhere else. I think I could stand it in that house with a car and some pleasant people as neighbors."

Ethel felt that she was making great concessions to go on any terms to a small town to live.

"I hope he realizes that you are very delicate, and cannot stand any hardships. I have protected you from everything, because I realized how frail you were," Mrs. Mertage anxiously stroked her daughter's hair.

"I think he realizes that," Ethel remarked easily. "I know how to take care of myself. I have learned that much from your constant watchfulness." She began to hurry around the room, putting on her wraps.

"Where are you going?" asked her mother.

"Over to show the picture of the house to Mildred. My, won't the girls think it's great? None of them has had a house. A flat is all any of them have been able to manage. The two that are engaged expect to live in flats."

Ethel's utterance was not clear, for she held her hatpin between her teeth while she adjusted her hat.

"Of course, living in a small town would make a difference," remarked her mother.

"I shall not say anything about that, you may be sure," answered the girl as she hurried away.

FASHION PARAGRAPHS.

Balls or tassels on the ends of sashes for coats, frocks and negligees are used.

The irregular lower line is maintained by many skirt hems. Sometimes there is a regular scallop, sometimes the skirt is in deep points, and sometimes it is simply looped back a bit at the sides to dip down back and front.

Velvet ribbon is used for sash ends.

There are many possibilities of prettiness in long, transparent sleeves. They are invariably finished attractively around the hands.

FOR THE HOME WOMAN.

When ironing have a number of coat hangers upon which to put blouses, children's dresses, etc.

Colored handkerchiefs or handkerchiefs with colored borders and spots should be soaked in cold water for a short time before they are washed. This will prevent the colors from running or fading.

Cookery books are apt to become very soiled and spotted with grease. It is therefore a good plan to cover them with strong American cloth, as this can be easily washed, and the book is always fresh and clean.

When cleaning wine-stained decanters, put into them some tea leaves, a little sand and some warm, soapy water. Shake well till the stain is removed, then rinse thoroughly in clear water and stand upside down to drain dry.

DELICIOUS DISHES.

Normandy Roast.
Peel, wash and slice thin, ten small, round potatoes. Thoroughly beat four egg yolks and two egg whites, stirring in one cup of beef broth. Season the liquid with one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon white pepper and one-fourth teaspoon grated nutmeg. Place the potatoes in a deep baking dish, pour over the liquid, lightly stir, and bake in a moderate oven for forty minutes.

Steamed Rhubarb Puffs.
Cream together one cup of sugar and two tablespoons of butter, add two well-beaten eggs, one-fourth cup milk, one teaspoon of baking powder, and sufficient flour to make a thick batter; then stir into this mixture one cup of finely chopped rhubarb; half fill well-buttered cups with the mixture, and steam for half an hour. Serve with cream or a pudding sauce.

Rhubarb Fritters.
Peel young rhubarb and cut into three-inch lengths. Make a batter by mixing together six large tablespoons of flour and one pint of milk. Stir until smooth, then add a pinch of salt, two well-beaten eggs; dip each piece of rhubarb into this mixture, and fry in hot fat until a golden brown. Serve piled high on a napkin-covered dish; sift powdered sugar over all, and send to the table while very hot.

Thin People Gained Weight Quickly

By Following This Simple Suggestion

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "stay there" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a while and note results. Here is a good test worth trying. First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say and think. The scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and many thin men and women we believe can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put. Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it aims to turn the fats, sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe, fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. Much of this nourishment now passes from your body as waste. But Sargol works to stop the waste and do it quickly and to make the fat producing contents of the very same meals you are eating now develop pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. A. R. McIntyre Drug Co., and other leading druggists in this vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back found in each large box—A. R. THEY ENTERED A CYCLONE'S VORTEX AND LIVED TO TELL IT

In Farm and Fireside is the following remarkable account of a family's experience in a Tennessee cyclone. The most curious part of it is the description of the actual center of the funnel which is said to be absolutely still.

"The sky became so dark that many people had to light their lamps. The atmosphere took on a strange purple hue, while a strong wind swept across the river, carrying branches of cypress and sycamore from a distant swamp."

"A moment more and the gigantic funnel-shaped black cloud leaped the river and tore its way through the swamp, mowing down immense trees as if they were straws, and striking our large two-story frame building with full force."

"We were seated in the large entrance hall in the center of the building when the first whirl of the cyclone caught us. It took our breath and swept us into its maelstrom. Out side, bricks, timbers, and branches were being hurled about with terrific force."

"We stood for a few seconds listening to the roar of the storm and the crashing of timbers. Our four large brick chimneys fell with a crash. Then we were enveloped in a dead calm—not a sound, not a breath of air, just a suffocating silence beyond description."

"Just a few seconds of this calm in the vortex of the cyclone, although it seemed like hours, when we were caught in the second whirl of the cloud. The entire front of the house was carried away, the roof and second-floor ceiling removed, and the completely demolished, and the interior of the first floor wrenched and twisted, partitions torn loose, and ready to collapse at any moment, ceiling and floors hanging by only one beam, every window shattered, stairs torn loose at top and bottom, and the whole house on the verge of collapsing."

"All this occurred in less than three minutes, and we made our way out, rejoicing that we were unhurt. Hundreds were killed in that cyclone."

AUTOGRAMS.
An automobile made in 1945 in Europe derived its power from springs. Steam stage coaches were in operation in England in 1820, but they were noisy and were legislated out of business.

The real beginning of the automobile business was made in America between 1892 and 1896.

Cars with plenty of clearance and equipped with oversize tires operate most easily on rough roads.

Cars equipped with tire chains can operate through dry snow up to 18 inches deep.

To be thoroughly master of an automobile know how it is made and how to adjust and repair it.

A well-trained horse slows down when going around curves or approach crossings. Make the auto do likewise.

PASSING SHOW BRINGS LAUGHTER TO AN OGDEN CROWD

If a New York Winter Garden revue is a surfeit of entertainment, then Ogdan theater-goers like to be surprised, for "The Passing Show of 1915," presented at the Orpheum theater last night, was enjoyed to the utmost extent from beginning to end. The bringing of the mammoth Shubert play to Ogdan was the climax to a season of big things for which the theater management deserves praise and that its enterprise is appreciated was attested by the fact that a capacity audience saw the show.

"The Passing Show of 1915" will be remembered for its bigness, metropolitan finish, its individual stars, chorus and ballet. It is replete with gorgeous stage settings, elaborate costumes, catchy music, rich comedy and startling dances, and exudes a continuous spirit of gaiety. As programmed from the noted New York temple of amusement, not a feature was left out, even the famous "runway" from the stage to the rear of the lower floor was there, giving the audience the thrill of momentary close association with the chorus and ballet girls.

Of plot, the show has just enough to introduce the principals to the audience, the librettists then forgetting it in favor of the gay life of the great metropolis and travesties on successful plays therein presented in years gone by. The plot, however, forces its way through the gay mélange of dances, burlesque and syncretized music, now and then to give opportunity for the speaking of a few neatly pointed lines and the singing of a genuinely good song.

There are fourteen episodes in "The Passing Show," giving the gala of notable entertainers individually and collectively, an opportunity to display their talent and each calling forth a change of scenery.

Of these, perhaps the most appreciated last night was "The Floral Ballet" with Marilyn Miller, Alexis Kosloff and the New York Winter Garden ballet as the center of attraction. The "Spring Ballet," quite the finest terpsichorean treat ever given a local audience. It was given in five movements, each being received with enthusiastic applause. Others of special interest were "The City from a Roof Garden" and "Aeroplane Invasion."

"The Primrose Way" and others in which the runway was utilized, and the "Hawaiian Bath."

Aside from being the largest numerically, the chorus was the most pleasing in appearance and vocal ability—for music of the type presented—that has yet entertained a local audience. The girls and men were also well practiced in dancing and performed their big part in the production as though they enjoyed it.

Of the stars, while some of the older favorites were responsible for the biggest part of the comedy, Miss Marilyn Miller won the deepest appreciation, with Daphne Pollard a close second. Miss Miller is not only the premiere danseuse of the big company, a position which she is entirely competent to hold, but is one of its best singers and an unusually winsome actress. She is one of the real "finds" of the present theatrical decade and Ogdan show-goers would welcome her return at any time. As a singing and dancing comedienne, Daphne Pollard is in a class of her own, being about the biggest bundle of fun ever put into a musical comedy production, which is saying a lot for a startlingly small young lady.

Edmund Goulding displayed a fine voice in two solos, "First Love is the Best Love of All" and "Flower of My Heart," both reditons being heartily applauded.

Helen Eley, as "Everywoman," was one of the principal soloists, and her finished singing and acting were appreciated.

Alex Kosloff was responsible for the artistic dancing of the ballet and shared honors with Miss Miller as a principal of the ballet. Other principals of the company whose work was worthy of note were Ernest Hare, Flora Lea and Dorothy Mantell.

The Winter Garden road orchestra, augmented by the local Orpheum musicians, acquitted itself admirably, under the direction of Samuel Lehman.

ACHES AND PAINS

Don't neglect a pain anywhere, but find out what causes it and conquer the cause. A pain in the kidney region may put you on your back tomorrow. Don't blame the weather for swollen feet. It may be an advance warning of Bright's disease. A pain in the stomach may be the first symptom of appendicitis. A croak in a joint may be the forerunner of rheumatism. Chronic headaches more than likely warn you of serious stomach trouble. The best way is to keep in good condition day in and day out by regularly taking GOLD MEDAL HARTLEIGH OIL Capsules. MANGO'S MEDAL wedged himself in front of Ossup on his way to an inside seat.

If there was one thing Ossup Mango was partial to it was a good moving picture. So he settled down in an aisle seat with a sigh of expectation as the eighty-seventh episode of "The Hazards of Hannah" began on the screen.

"Pshaw, I missed the note!" thought Ossup. "Ah! He's going to blow up the bridge!"

Half a second before the dynamite went off a thin woman with three babies in her arms got in front of him on her way in.

"And I love explosions, too!" muttered Ossup. But a few minutes later he brightened, for the aeroplane chase started.

All during the chase Ossup was gazing at the back of a fireman who had got wedged between Ossup's knees and the seat in front.

"I know!" thought Ossup. "I'll wait for the second show and see the parts these people have made of this!"

And he did, and during the note scene the thin woman stood in front of him on her way out, the fireman blocked the bridge explosion and the stout man hid the aeroplane chase.

It was then that Ossup Mango killed the two ushers who came down to chide him for complaining aloud. But later the judge who tried him, being a movie fan himself, discharged him with an iron cross.—Indianapolis Star.

BUT SOMEBODY MAY GET IT

An Englishman serving his country as attaché to the British embassy at Washington says that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle has more than once been sought out by persons desirous of consulting him about thefts.

To one such woman, Sir Arthur good naturedly said: "My detective powers are quite at your service."

"Frequent and mysterious thefts," said the woman, "have been occurring at my house for a long time. There disappeared last week a motor horn, a broom, a box of golf balls, a left riding boot, a dictionary and a half-dozen tin plates."

"The case is perfectly clear," said Sir Arthur; "you keep a goat."

SUFFRAGISTS TO BE NON-PARTISAN

New York, May 4.—The opposition of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, leader of the National American Woman Suffrage association to the formation of a woman's party was announced today in a statement issued by the headquarters of the association.

"The minute we make suffrage a party issue," said Dr. Shaw, "we lose our friends in the party that is to be disciplined and we cannot afford to do that. It takes a two thirds majority in congress to pass any federal amendment and no party in power has controlled that much power since 1889. Consequently, it is up to us to maintain a strictly nonpartisan attitude."
